ROOSEVELT AND WILSON ON CURRENT ISSUES

By Ex-President ROOSEVELT.

THIS national life must be dominated by the two great truths: First, that in a successful democracy every man must, in reasona- that America stands for. keeper," and, second, that every the sort of aggression which would citizen in such a democracy must accept with his whole heart the

The prime needs in preparedness, the needs which can be immediately met, are to give us, first, the navy we require and, second, the regular army we require.

Military preparedness is only one side of all around preparedness. It would be worthless unless based on industrial preparedness. and both would be worthless unless based on preparedness of the soul and spirit.

I wish to say, with all the emphasis in my power, that if peace in Europe should come to-morrow it ought not in the smallest degree to affect our policy of preparedness.

Theodore Roosevelt.

I speak for universal service based on universal training. Universal training and universal service represent the only service and training a democracy should accept. It is the plain people, it is the farmers, the workingmen, the small business men, the professional men. who above all others should back up this plan.

Performance of international duty to others means that in international affairs, in the commonwealth of nations, we shall not only refrain from wronging the weak, but according to our capacity, and as opportunity offers, stand up for the weak when the weak are world to preserve the peace of the world upon a basis of common wronged by the strong. Most emphatically it does not mean that we shall submit to wrongdoing by other nations.

It is, however, worse than idle, it is mischievous, to indulge in visionary plans about world action in the future until in the present we the pernicious habit of making reckless promises which cannot, or ought not, or will not be kept; and in the second place, and most important of all, by preparing our own strength so that we can protect
